HAVE YOU HEARD ABOUT GLOBAL WARMING ???

A few years ago the planners were encouraging development in areas that would keep car journeys down to a minimum.

The main considerations were -- available employment -- available retail -- and available education. These all had to be in close proximity to major development areas.

Now there is a proposal to put large developments in the BERKELEY to SHARPNESS area. Here there is little employment and the nearby schools are all at or near capacity. The nearest large supermarkets are all miles away.

The local road system is already struggling to cope with the quantity of traffic.

Where is the sense in all this ?
